

Additional Information

I'm nominating for council because I believe our community deserves strong, thoughtful representation. We are at a turning point: growth is coming quickly to our area, cost-of-living pressures are real, and the decisions we make now will shape what life looks like for future generations.

My professional background is in leading design and strategy teams within financial services, where I've spent almost a decade working through complex projects, regulatory constraints and major investment decisions. This has given me the skills to read and question budgets, test ideas against evidence, and balance ambition with accountability. I also know the importance of listening to customers, colleagues and stakeholders because the best outcomes are reached when different voices are considered.

In council, I will apply these same skills. I will question constructively, collaborate respectfully, and ensure decisions are transparent and understandable for residents.

Some key areas I want to focus on include:

- Managing growth responsibly: ensuring infrastructure, roads and services keep pace with new developments.
- Protecting our environment: preserving the bushland and wildlife that define our city while preparing for the realities of climate change.
- Financial responsibility: making sure ratepayer funds are used wisely, with a focus on long-term value rather than short-term fixes.
- Opportunities for people: supporting pathways for jobs, learning and innovation so our community thrives in a changing world.

I don't believe one councillor alone can solve every challenge, but I do believe in the power of good process, honest debate and open communication. If elected, I'll bring hard work, integrity and a practical mindset to every decision, always with the interests of the community front of mind.
